Neil McDonald has extensive experience as a teacher and principal in a range of schools from primary through to secondary, across special education and inclusive contexts, and large complex P-12 schools. As Chief Executive Officer of three large organisations and having significant state school sector HR experience, his diverse background enables him to effectively support and walk alongside leaders at all levels.

As a fully accredited coach with GCI, Neil has coached large numbers of mid-level leaders, aspiring managers, principals, and senior leaders in government. Neil appreciates the complexities and challenges that both new and experienced leaders face. He adopts a coaching style that enables him to easily connect with participants and understand the context and challenges they face.
